Tickets are now available for the Charleston Ballet’s delightful program PLAY BALL! This ballet will celebrate the opening of baseball season next spring. Lively and playful, this definite crowd pleaser pays homage to the All-American Girls Professional Baseball League of 1943. This choreography presents a “what if” look at what might have happened if the men and women’s teams ever competed in an exhibition game. Whether you love ballet or baseball, this “9 Inning” ballet gives you guest choreographer Christopher Fleming’s rendition complete with bats and balls, peanuts and pointe shoes! Additional works will be presented to finish this spring performance filled with many male guest dancers from Columbia Classical Ballet. These performances will be a wonderful introduction to the world of dance and a great way to achieve many of the requirements for your performing arts (dance, music) badge. An exciting evening of entertainment for the whole family!
